Description: Here, at the valley floor near the Schösswendklamm, the waters have been carving through the hard rock for thousands of years. This has created remarkable erosion formations, potholes, and small waterfalls. Following the gorge, the trail continues to Hintersee, where you will learn interesting facts about the flora and fauna in the upper Felbertal. On the northern side of the lake, the circular trail leads to a hilltop offering a view of the valley end with its impressive rock walls, where chamois can be seen. The return journey follows the same route.
