Description: From the meeting point at Enzingerboden, a snow-covered forest path leads through a tunnel into a coniferous forest with ancient spruces, larches, and stone pines. In the Rötentrög region, you may spot nutcrackers. Through gentle snowshoe terrain, you will reach a rewarding viewpoint above the Schusterschwärzer. The hike continues over steeper terrain towards Rötenkarl, with the option to ascend either the Rötenkogel or the Schwarzkarlriedl. From here, you will enjoy a breathtaking view of the deeply snow-covered peaks such as Hocheiser, Hohe Riffel, and Granatspitze. The descent follows a more direct route back to the meeting point.
